UNH Among Peace Corps' Top Volunteer-Producing Colleges & Universities in 2014
UNH increases rank for the third straight year

NEW YORK, N.Y., Feb. 11, 2014 – The Peace Corps today released the 2014 rankings of the top volunteer-producing colleges and universities across the country. This year, the University of New Hampshire ranked No. 11 among medium schools, with 23 undergraduate alumni currently volunteering worldwide.

This marks the third straight year that UNH has increased its national rank on the Peace Corps' Top College list. In 2013, UNH ranked No. 12.

UNH alumni are currently serving as volunteers in Armenia, Azerbaijan, Cambodia, Cameroon, Ethiopia, Georgia, Ghana, Guatemala, Jordan, Kenya, Liberia, Morocco, Namibia, Nepal, Nicaragua, the Philippines, Rwanda and Senegal. They work in areas including agriculture, education, health and community economic development.

“The same passion that launched the Peace Corps more than 50 years ago fuels progress in developing countries today thanks to the leadership and creativity that college graduates bring to their Peace Corps service,” Peace Corps Acting Director Carrie Hessler-Radelet said. “The unique Peace Corps experience helps recent graduates cultivate highly sought-after skills that will launch their careers in today’s global economy.”

Since the first days of the Peace Corps, 697 UNH alumni from have traveled abroad to serve as volunteers.

“I have the privilege of working at a school that is always supportive and enthusiastic about the projects I do with the students,” said Rebecca Keys, a UNH alumna who is currently serving as a Peace Corps volunteer in the Philippines. “I have coached the swim team, renovated our library, started a leadership club, led HIV/AIDS awareness trainings, implemented a remedial reading program, and will soon be introducing a girls' empowerment initiative in my town.”

“I think that my experience at UNH helped me tremendously,” added Anders Nordquist, who recently completed his Peace Corps service in Madagascar. “I knew that I had the right skills professionally and personally to bring to a developing community and knew that, in return, I would grow from the experience.”

In 2013, New Hampshire ranked nationally among states with the highest number of Peace Corps volunteers per capita. Seventy-two (72) currently-serving Peace Corps volunteers called the Granite State home, making it the No. 3 Peace Corps volunteer-producing state in the nation on a per-capita basis.

Service in the Peace Corps is a life-defining, hands-on leadership experience that offers volunteers the opportunity to travel to the farthest corners of the world and make a lasting difference in the lives of others. Peace Corps volunteers live and work at the community level and promote a better understanding between Americans and the people they serve, while at the same time becoming global citizens.

When they return home, volunteers bring knowledge and experiences that give them a competitive edge for 21st century jobs and advanced educational opportunities. They give back to their own communities and enrich the lives of those around them, helping to strengthen international ties and increase our country's global competitiveness.

The Peace Corps has eight regional recruitment offices across the United States that work closely with prospective volunteers to ensure that all Americans who want to serve have the opportunity to do so. The Northeast regional recruitment office serves UNH, and Peace Corps recruiters are based throughout the region. Find the recruitment office near you by visiting the Peace Corps website here.
