Looking Near and Far: Expanding Your Job Search Outside DC

By Sarah Tourville, RPCV Kenya 2002-2004

Like so many other RPCVs, my experience overseas significantly changed my ideas about what I wanted to do for my future career (and really, how I wanted to live my life). After I COSed, I went directly to graduate school with the idea that once I graduated I would easily land a great job in international development. Looking back on it now, after finally finding a job after more than 18 months of searching, I realize it was naïve to think that way. Washington, DC, is one of the most competitive cities in the world in which to find a job, simply because well-qualified people flock to it. In the course of my job-searching journey I met many extremely well-qualified RPCVs who were in the same situation I was: holding a temporary job while searching for something else. Many of us limit ourselves by looking for work only in major metropolitan areas. I want to share my story of finding a job where I never expected to: Little Rock, Arkansas.

For the first year of my search I did focus almost entirely on jobs in DC. I figured that since DC has so many international development organizations, my chances were best where there were more jobs to be had. However, after a year, I had to admit to the fact that searching for jobs solely in DC was not working, and I needed to do something to revitalize my job search.

I belonged to the RPCVnetwork listserv, and the career listserv through my graduate program, plus I frequently checked a major non-profit job listing service for their listings. I also started thinking about organizations that I knew about through school or through my Peace Corps experience that did the type of work I was interested in doing, but were smaller than or not as well-known as the organizations in DC. I did Internet searches on non-profits, NGOs, community development organizations, and charities to see if I could find organizations outside DC that would be a good match for the type of work that I wanted to do.

I started applying for jobs in places like Seattle, San Francisco, Honolulu, Burlington, St. Paul, and Little Rock. My priority had always been to find a job at an organization whose mission I could truly support, and I finally came to realize that it didn't matter to me so much exactly where I was, but rather, what I was doing. Another friend and RPCV told me he had chosen five cities that he really wanted to live in, and was searching for jobs that way. Either way, we both realized there was a world of opportunity outside DC.

About five months after expanding my job search, I landed an interview with a non-profit in Little Rock, and four days after my interview, I was offered the job. I am really enjoying Little Rock. There are times when I miss the excitement of a big city, and all the cultural opportunities in DC. However, I find I really enjoy living in a

Peace Corps Response

Eastern Caribbean

The National Emergency Management Office in Castries is requesting a PC Response Volunteer to assist with strengthening NEMO's ability to guide the recovery process for communities through the development of recovery plans for six key national emergencies.

The Roving Caregivers Programme of St. Lucia in Castries is requesting a Peace Corps Response Volunteer to assist and educate the community in caring for children from birth to three years of age. This unique program requires the ability to develop and conduct parent education workshops, assist with training of volunteers, provide support to parents in developmental approaches to child raising, assist with nutrition and meal planning, and provide activities to further childhood development.

For more details and to apply, visit www.peacecorps.gov/response

Guyana

The National Blood Transfusion Service in Guyana is requesting a PC Response Volunteer to assist with strengthening the blood safety program. The Volunteer will take the lead in developing a framework to extract hemovigilance data from the existing quality system for the purpose of improving blood bank services.

Liberia

The Ministry of Education requests two Peace Corps Response Volunteers (PCRVs) to work as Library Support Specialists. The PCRVs will be placed at Learning Resource Centers (LRCs) in two different counties and each will support the LRCs in their neighboring counties as well. LRCs have been established in a total of six counties and provide teachers, students, Ministry staff, and the larger community with Internet access and a library. The LRCs serve as a delivery mechanism to provide on-going training, workspace, refresher in-service meetings, and materials-development support to teachers and administrators. They also serve as a technical hub with computers, training manuals, and supplies. The PCRVs will be responsible for building the individual capacity of LRC staff to develop and organize well-run centers that enhance the ability of users to access information.

The Ministry of Education (MOE) requests two Peace Corps Response Volunteers (PCRVs) to work as Parent Teacher Association Organizers. Liberia underwent a period of 14 years of brutal conflict that devastated the country's infrastructure, resulting in widespread poverty, complete lack of or extremely limited agricultural production, and breakdown of family and community coping mechanisms. Liberia remains among the world's most food insecure countries. The conflict impacted many sectors of society, including the education sector. Schooling was badly disrupted as food-insecure families often employed children into income activities instead of sending them to school. The MOE is moving towards initiating greater community involvement in its school management-related programs and is mobilizing Parent Teacher Associations (PTAs) and creating awareness of community leaders to support the school feeding program at the community level.

Panama

Panama's Environmental Protection Agency known as Autoridad del Medio Ambiente (ANAM) is requesting two Peace Corps Response volunteers to train community groups and schools on topics related to natural resource management and reforestation. The purpose of the project is to encourage environmentally friendly business and agricultural practices through strengthening environmental education and awareness within the Río Chico watershed. The volunteers will be responsible for conducting workshops to train and support community groups on the promotion of environmental education, alternative farming techniques that minimize the environmental impact through the implementation of organic fertilizers and the reduction of agrochemical use. They will also support the creation of a year long plan of environmental education presentations given to grade school classes by reforestation groups.

Philippines

Stairway Foundation, Inc. (SFI) is a resource center for the protection and promotion of children's rights. Stairway is in the process of renovating and expanding its residential and training facilities and is requesting a Peace Corps Response volunteer to develop an overall plan and design a complex that is functional and conducive for therapy, education, training and physical as well as mental development. The PCRV will be responsible for developing an overall plan and design for the Resource Center complex to include topography, sewage, plumbing, and electrical plans. In addition, the PCRV will be asked to map out topography and vegetation on Stairway's mountain property (10 hectares), and give suggestions for the development of a future school for the indigenous people on the site.

The Gawad Kalinga Community Development Foundation, Inc. (GK) is requesting four Peace Corps Response volunteers to create site development plans and community infrastructure designs to rehabilitate existing informal settler communities within Metro Manila. The purpose of the project is to transform settler communities into safer and more secure environments for residents and visitors alike, and to transform existing slum communities into decent communities. In close collaboration with the partnering organization, the PCRVs will be responsible for reviewing previous and current project implementation; designing site-specific infrastructure and a site development plan; presenting designs for approval of all stakeholders; providing technical assistance; and supervising project implementation to ensure that designs are strictly followed to maintain proper safety standards.

Taw-Kabui for a Child, Incorporated is a non-governmental, faith-based and community-based center for special children in Puerto Princesa City. The organization is requesting a Peace Corps Response volunteer to develop the capacity of teachers at the Center to effectively use accepted SPED methods, strategies, and techniques to support the educational development of children with learning disabilities. The PCRV will work daily at the Center to provide technical assistance to co-teachers on the knowledge, attitude, and skills required to teach special children through demonstrations and focus group discussions. The PCRV will also be responsible for preparing and developing program materials and a teaching guide with the teachers; reviewing and enhancing Individual Educational Plans for teachers; and enhancing assessment and evaluation materials for the children and their parents.

Swaziland

A Peace Corps Response Volunteer (PCRV) is being requested to work with the Ministry of Education to improve the training of primary school teachers. The high incidence of HIV/AIDS in Swaziland has severely crippled the education system and has led to a large loss of teachers. It is hoped that the PCRV will contribute to improving the delivery of primary education in the medium- to long-term. The volunteer will be based at a Teacher Training College and will serve as a teacher educator/teacher trainer.

The Ministry of Education in Swaziland has requested a Peace Corps Response Volunteer (PCRV) to work with their INSET (In-Service Teacher Education and Training) Department as an Instructor and Teacher Resource Center Coordinator. INSET provides primary school teachers with in-service training courses in an effort to raise the quality of classroom teaching. There are approximately 12 trainers currently working under the INSET director and in close cooperation with the inspectorate and other education service providers. The focus of the PCRV's assignment is to influence the quality of INSET courses by upgrading trainers' capacity to deliver INSET courses. The emphasis would be on improving training methodology in general, assisting in efforts to align teacher education with a "modern" concept of (primary) education to support the development/flourishing of a knowledge-based economy, conducting needs assessment activities, following-up on the results of training activities at the school and classroom levels, and more.

For more details and to apply, visit www.peacecorps.gov/response

Uganda

UWESO, a local NGO in Uganda, is requesting a Peace Corps Response Volunteer to provide capacity building assistance to strengthen the organization's core programming needs. The Volunteer would be responsible for providing expertise in developing a comprehensive business plan, assessing the needs of UWESO's primary projects in order to promote sustainability through fundraising efforts, and assisting with building partnerships with potential donors and other stakeholders to ensure continued program effectiveness.

Straight Talk Foundation in Uganda is requesting a Peace Corps Response Volunteer to provide assistance to the Gulu Youth Center (GYC) in the Gulu District of northern Uganda. The youth center is charged with providing adolescent-friendly services to youth in HIV/AIDS education and prevention. The volunteer will provide support and strengthening through capacity building activities place where the pace of life is slower, and people here are extremely friendly and welcoming. The cost of living here is profoundly lower than in DC, and that is also something I really appreciate. I work with an amazing group of dedicated individuals, and I love my job. And although it's much smaller than the one in DC, I've already connected with the RPCV network here in Little Rock. While

I never expected to be here, I am so glad that I am, and I encourage you to expand your job search too. Who knows? You may even find a great job in a place you least expected.

Peace Corps' Office of Domestic Programs, Returned Volunteer Services Introduces SIGI<sup>3</sup>

What is SIGI<sup>3</sup>?

SIGI<sup>3</sup> is a highly interactive career assessment tool that is designed to help you make informed and rational decisions about your field of study and career. SIGI<sup>3</sup> can help you assess your work-related values, interests, and skills. SIGI<sup>3</sup> will help you examine key motivators and match work-related values, interests, and skills to educational and career pathways. First you will enter your work-related preferences, and then SIGI<sup>3</sup> will search its built-in library and find those careers that most closely match your preferences. SIGI<sup>3</sup>'s library is so large that it may well find career options that you never even considered or knew existed!

How do I register for access to SIGI<sup>3</sup>?

To access SIGI<sup>3</sup>, e-mail RVS at rvsinfo@peacecorps.gov with your full name, country and dates of Peace Corps service.

**SIGI 3 is licensed to the United States Peace Corps. Use of this license by individuals not officially and directly authorized by Peace Corps' Office of Domestic Programs/Returned Volunteer Services is prohibited.****

*"The logic of the Peace Corps is that someday we are going to bring it home to America."
