University of Idaho Debuts in Top 10 on Peace Corps' 2013 Top Colleges Rankings
Ranks No. 7 Among Medium-Sized Universities, Returns to Top 25 After Six-Year Absence

WASHINGTON, February 5, 2013 – This year, the University of Idaho (UI) makes its first appearance in the top 10 on Peace Corps' 2013 Top Colleges rankings, taking the No. 7 spot among medium-sized schools. The annual list recognizes the highest volunteer-producing colleges and universities for small, medium, large and graduate institutions. There are currently 33 undergraduate alumni from UI serving overseas.

“Every year, graduates of colleges and universities across the United States are making a difference in communities overseas through Peace Corps service,” said Peace Corps Acting Director Carrie Hessler-Radelet. “As a result of the top-notch education they receive, these graduates are well prepared for the challenge of international service. They become leaders in their host communities and carry the spirit of service and leadership back with them when they return home.”

UI moves up 29 places from its No. 36 ranking the previous year, making it the only school in Idaho to place in the Top Colleges rankings. This marks the first time since 2006 that UI has appeared among the top 25 medium-sized universities. Historically, the University of Idaho has produced 521 Peace Corps volunteers.

"Peace Corps announces Top Colleges annually to recognize the schools that contribute the most alumni who are making a difference overseas through volunteer service," said Peace Corps West Coast Regional Manager Janet Allen. "We thank and congratulate the University of Idaho as one of the 23 universities from the West Coast producing globally-minded leaders who turn idealism into action as Peace Corps volunteers. Personally, I'm thrilled to see UI in the top 10 for the first time."

Currently, more than 8,000 volunteers are working with communities in 76 host countries on projects related to agriculture, community economic development, education, environment, health and youth development.

During Peace Corps service, college graduates make a difference in communities overseas. Volunteers return home as global citizens with cross-cultural, leadership, language, teaching and community development skills that position them for advanced education and professional opportunities in today's global job market. Ninety percent of volunteer positions require a bachelor's degree. Americans with backgrounds in agriculture, environment, teaching English as a second language, and other technical or language skills related to Peace Corps assignment areas are encouraged to apply for service one year in advance of their target departure date. The next application deadline is February 28, 2013.

The Peace Corps ranks Top Colleges annually according to the size of the student body. Small schools have less than 5,000 undergraduates, medium-sized schools have between 5,000 and 15,000 undergraduates and large schools have more than 15,000 undergraduates. Rankings are calculated based on fiscal year 2012 data as of September 30, 2012 as self-reported by Peace Corps volunteers.
