1.0 Authority

2.0 Purpose
The purpose of this manual section is to describe the organization, mission, and functions of the Office of Safety and Security.

3.0 Organization

The Office of Safety and Security (SS) is headed by an Associate Director who reports directly to the Deputy Director of Peace Corps. The Office of Safety and Security is divided into two operational units, one for domestic security and one for overseas security, each headed by a Chief.

4.0 Office Missions

4.1 Office of Safety and Security

The mission of the Office of Safety and Security is to oversee the safety and security programs for Peace Corps Volunteers and Trainees (V/Ts) and staff, both in the U.S. and overseas. The Office of Safety and Security directs and oversees all security programs for the agency with the exception of information technology (IT) security. The Office of Safety and Security provides technical oversight of the safety and security positions assigned to the Office of Global Operations by developing the scope of work for the positions, establishing performance standards and professional development programs for the positions, and assisting and advising the supervisors of such positions on the selection of applicants for the positions and the performance evaluation of the persons holding the positions, and by providing technical guidance and assistance to each Region and post. The Office of Safety and Security acts as the liaison with other agencies and organizations in security-related matters.

4.2 Overseas Operations

The mission of Overseas Operations is to oversee the agency’s programs related to the safety and security of V/Ts and staff and to coordinate the physical security programs for Peace Corps facilities overseas.

4.3 Domestic Operations

The mission of Domestic Operations is to manage the agency’s programs related to the security eligibility for employment and security of U.S.-based staff, resources, and facilities; continuity of operations; and the access to, and control of, classified information.
